What is a solar energy scam?

The scams vary, but here's the gist: someone claiming to be with the government or your utility company promises big savings on your utility bills from solar energy or other home improvements designed to increase energy efficiency. If you agree to the scammer's offer, it could cost you tens of thousands of dollars.

Are free solar panels a scam?

Know that "free" or "no cost" solar panel offers are scams. The federal government does not install solar systems in homes for free. If you're considering whether solar energy is right for you, check out the Department of Energy's guide for homeowners and learn more. Or check out the Department of Treasury's guidance on clean energy.

How do I avoid getting scammed with solar panels?

To avoid getting scammed, you need to know what to look out for and when to walk away. Here's our guide to spotting solar panel scams and finding a great installer. If something you see or hear from a salesperson sounds too good to be true, it probably is.

How do I report a solar panel scam?

If you suspect you've fallen victim to a solar panel scam, report it to the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) and your state's consumer protection agency. You should also file a complaint with the Better Business Bureau (BBB) and inform your family and friends.

The Federal Trade Commission is getting tired of dealing with all the solar panel scam complaints and warns consumers what to watch out for.

The three most common solar scams are so-called free solar panels, requests for detailed personal or financial data right away, and misleading contracts.
