What are the different types of storage cabinets?

Linen cabinets store bulkier items like towels, linens, and clothes. Vanity units store toiletries, beauty products, cleaning supplies, and more. Over-the-toilet cabinets conceal bathroom items like toilet paper, decorative accents, and the like. File cabinets organize your documents and files so that you can easily access them.

What are the different types of file cabinets?

Like every other type of storage cabinet, file cabinets also come in different forms--the most popular being vertical and lateral designs. The former is slim and tall, and doesn't take up a lot of floor or wall space. The latter is wider, and as such, provides more space for storing files and other items.

What is a cabinet used for?

Cabinet A closed box with doors to store dishes, books, or supplies. Shelf A flat board on a wall or in furniture used to hold items like books or boxes. Wardrobe A tall piece of furniture where clothes are stored, often with hangers. Chest A large wooden or metal box used to store clothes, blankets, or valuables.

What are some examples of storage furniture?

Chests, nightstands, sideboards, and dressers are typical examples of storage furniture that don't take up too much wall and floor space. Lateral file cabinets are also compact units, but they only conserve floor space.
